Writing references and using citation management software

Orhan Sungur M, Ozkan Seyhan T

Türk Üroloji Dergisi/Turkish Journal of Urology

2014 vol: 39 (1) pp: 25-32

The correct citation of references is obligatory to gain scientific credibility, to honor the original ideas of previous authors and to avoid plagiarism. Currently, researchers can easily find, cite and store references using citation management software. In this review, two popular citation management software programs (EndNote and Mendeley) are summarized.

- Abstract: © 2018 The Korean Academy of Medical Sciences. Background: Significant clinical heterogeneity within contemporary risk group is well known, particularly for those with intermediate-risk prostate cancer (IRPCa). Our study aimed to analyze the ability of the Cancer of the Prostate Risk Assessment (CAPRA) score to discern between favorable and non-favorable risk in patients with IRPCa. Methods: We retrospectively reviewed the data of 203 IRPCa patients who underwent extraperitoneal robot-assisted radical prostatectomy (RAP) performed by a single surgeon. Pathologic favorable IRPCa was...
